Grant Application Tips for Businesses Owners in Town:

Each Grant application may differ in their requirements but below are some general tips that may be useful in acquiring a Grant.

1. Identify the Grant provider.
 - a. Who is offering the Grant
 - i. Confirm their reliability
 - ii. Research the history of previous Grants
 - b. Amount requested.
 - i. Have a firm understanding of what is needed and when
 - ii. Remember Grants could take 2 to 6 months to receive the funds
 - c. Depending on Grant award amounts
 - i. Find out if a Business Plan is required?
 - ii. Compile information on any Company Officers?
 - d. Consider additional details needed which may vary depending on type Grant applied for.

Create a folder (digital or hard copy) of basic Grant information. Having a folder saves time, especially when applying for multiple Grants or for filing any required update reports. Note that the larger the request, the more details are usually requested.

2. Information on your company should include:
 - a. Tax ID
 - b. Financial information regarding your business
 - i. Last year's tax info
 - ii. Projected growth
 - iii. Company classification (i.e. Minority owned, Women-owned), etc.
 1. If MBE or WBE, are you registered and is the registration current
3. Create an actionable plan with answers to questions that may be asked. For example:
 - a. Why should we give you a Grant? Explain the purpose or goal of your project, or the problem you are solving.
 - b. How will your company spend the Grant monies? Be prepared with a budget, necessary quotes for materials or services. Some Grants are reimbursement only, others may give partial balances based on progress reports. They are usually brief and easy to do.
 - c. What do you consider a successful outcome?
 - d. How will you meet the milestones outlined in the grant? Be prepared to file periodic progress reports if the grant is a longer term, as well as a final report.
4. Know your audience. Create a sales pitch specifically for the Grant in question. You can create a basic template and modify it accordingly. Depending on the Grant requirements, you may need to present your case verbally or just as a written form. A slide presentation may be necessary. Include a short overview, problem description, budget, timeline, and any other artifacts that may support your request. Also, search for sample grants or talk with other Grant writers. Make sure your pitch meets the mission of the funder to be successful. Don't forget they want to publicize their goals as well.

5. Practice your presentation. Even if you think you are not a salesperson, you are. You are selling yourself and your business to win that grant. Applying for a Grant is similar to a job interview.
 - a. Hints...audio and/or video record it so you can play it back and critique. Repeat until you feel comfortable with what you say and how you say it.
6. If the Grant is awarded....Congratulations! Be sure to keep a detailed record of how the Grant money is spent as you may be required to provide a periodic progress report. An end of Grant report is usually required.
7. Your funders want you to succeed so work with them if there are bumps in the road. Keep the lines of communication open. Your record keeping and fulfillment of goals will establish a track record. Successful projects lead to more Grants in the future.

Broadband Equity Access and Deployment Program:

The Broadband Equity, Access, and Deployment (BEAD)

Program, provides $42.45 billion to expand high-speed internet access by funding planning, infrastructure deployment and adoption programs in all 50 states, Washington D.C., Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

Digital Equity Act

The Digital Equity Act, part of the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act (IIJA), invites states to undertake a comprehensive planning process to establish a vision for digital connectivity that will guide overarching strategies and goals. Once submitted and approved by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA), this plan will unlock funding for New Jersey to begin to implement the strategies and activities described in the plan.

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law (“BIL”):

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law (“BIL”) included a historical amount of funding for broadband. BIL included both the Broadband Access, Equity, and Deployment (“BEAD”) Program, which will fund infrastructure investment to bring high-speed internet to households across the US and the Digital Equity Act (“DEA”), which aims to bridge the digital divide for vulnerable populations. These two federal programs will unlock significant funding for New Jersey to advance digital equity goals. The New Jersey Office of Broadband Connectivity (“OBC”) is spearheading the effort to implement New Jersey’s vision for digital equity. New Jersey’s digital equity vision is for every resident to have the confidence and competence to harness the power of the internet, devices, and digitally accessible services. Digital equity can help New Jersey bridge economic and achievement disparities among all residents, enabling them to lead fulfilling lives with dignity.

To achieve this vision, New Jersey will pursue four goals:

1. Ensure access to affordable high-speed internet for every New Jerseyans both in their home and in their communities.
2. Ensure that every New Jerseyans has the confidence and competence they need to achieve their goals using computers and the internet. These goals may be related to:
 - Accessing education
 - Finding employment
 - Building a business
 - Obtaining healthcare
 - Accessing government services
 - Understanding and using online information
 - Engaging civically; and
 - Maintaining cybersecurity
3. Ensure that every New Jerseyans has access to devices, software, assistive technologies, training, and technical support to achieve their well-being.
4. Ensure that every New Jerseyans has efficient and effective digital experiences with state government to obtain information or services

In advancing these goals, the purpose of the State Digital Equity Plan is to:

1. Identify the digital equity resources and programs (called “assets”) that exist across New Jersey to better understand where the state has strong resources and potential gaps
2. Analyze the broadband-related needs of vulnerable residents (called “Covered Populations” in the DEA) through data and community engagement sessions to identify areas for potential investment
3. Propose strategies to close digital equity gaps across key indicators
4. Propose opportunities for collaboration and partnership among the state, municipal and local governments, nonprofits, and the private sector to create long-term solutions

This draft Digital Equity Plan is informed by over a year of coordination across many stakeholder groups. OBC received input from over 120 stakeholder meetings, two working groups focused on digital equity and workforce development topics, and hundreds of comments via OBC’s public website. Participating stakeholders included digital equity organizations; services organizations and nonprofits; public housing authorities; municipalities; internet service providers; resident focus groups (e.g., aging individuals, veterans); state agencies; and others detailed in Section 4.1 (Stakeholder and Community Engagement). OBC also conducted data analysis and a public survey to inform the fact base for this plan.

As a result of these efforts, OBC made several key observations.

- New Jersey has strong overall broadband adoption, but the digital divide persists. As of 2021, New Jersey had one of the highest rates of broadband adoption in the US, with 92% of New Jersey residents reporting having some type of internet subscription. However, this progress masks inequities among Covered Populations. OBC will track these gaps over time and leverage this data to make decisions on future digital equity investments.
- Barriers to broadband adoption and affordability vary among different New Jersey residents. For example, for seniors, a distinct barrier is the availability of training and resources to help them build digital skills, while for some individuals with disabilities, a distinct barrier is the affordability of assistive technologies, which are software and hardware that can help residents use computers.
- There is high demand for investments in digital equity. In public meetings, residents belonging to Covered Populations expressed high demand for digital literacy resources, improvements in broadband and device affordability, and increased accessibility of government websites and services. These comments informed not only the state’s digital equity goals.
- New Jersey has many local programs addressing important aspects of digital equity, but there is an opportunity to increase statewide coordination and services. OBC will seek to empower and coordinate local initiatives, as well as to invest in new initiatives where gaps exist.

Vision for Digital Equity:

The 2021 Bipartisan Infrastructure Law (“BIL”), also known as the Infrastructure and Investment Jobs Act (“IIJA”), provided over $1.2 trillion in funding for infrastructure, and specifically, over $45B for broadband-related funding. The two largest pieces of legislation related to digital equity in BIL were:

- 1. The Broadband Equity Access and Deployment (“BEAD”) Program which allocated $42.5B to expand access to high-speed internet in all 50 states and territories. New Jersey is expected to receive approximately $264M under BEAD to advance this goal. This funding will be leveraged to build infrastructure (“deployment”) to connect all New Jersey households to high-speed internet. If this goal is met, any residual funding could then be allocated to “non-deployment” activities, such as digital equity programs.
- 2. The Digital Equity Act (“DEA”), which allocated $2.75B to build community skills, technology, and capacity to drive meaningful adoption of high-speed internet services. New Jersey’s allocation under this program is not yet finalized. Funding is expected to be awarded in 2024.

These programs will be administered by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (“NTIA”), housed with the federal Department of Commerce. NTIA has asked all states to propose plans for both programs, and to ensure these two planning processes are highly coordinated. In anticipation of these new funding sources, the New Jersey Office of Broadband Connectivity (“OBC”) has led planning for over a year in partnership with the New Jersey State Library (“NJSL”) and other agencies.

Access to high-speed internet is a 21st century necessity. Students require the internet to access complete coursework and learning, workers require the internet to do their jobs, patients need the internet to access telehealth, and entrepreneurs use the internet to run their businesses. Internet access has become so important that the United Nations has included it in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.¹ Enabling broad based adoption of internet services was a foundational goal of the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law and is a priority for the state of New Jersey as well.

New Jersey’s definition of digital equity is for every resident to have the confidence and competence to harness the power of the internet, devices, and digitally accessible services. Digital equity can help New Jersey bridge economic and achievement disparities among all residents, enabling them to lead fulfilling lives with dignity. In line with this vision, four overarching goals set forth the aspirations of the Digital Equity Plan:

- Ensure access to affordable high speed internet for every New Jersey resident both in their home and in their communities.
- Ensure that every New Jersey resident has the confidence and competence they need to use computers and the internet to achieve their goals. These goals may be related to accessing education; finding employment; building a business; obtaining healthcare; accessing government services; understanding and using online information; engaging civically; and maintaining cybersecurity.
- Ensure that every New Jersey resident has access to devices, software, assistive technologies, training, and technical support to achieve their well-being.
- Ensure that every New Jersey resident has efficient and effective digital experiences with the state government to obtain information or services. OBC has identified strategies and activities under these goals which largely focus on populations prioritized within the Digital Equity Act, called “Covered Populations.” According to the DEA, Covered Populations refer to specific vulnerable communities.

“Every New Jersey resident deserves access to reliable, affordable, and fast broadband internet. Unfortunately, too many residents and businesses, especially in rural and low income areas of our state, are still unable to take advantage of broadband internet access. Along with our congressional delegation and our Legislature, we are working to ensure that those living and working in New Jersey have access to reliable high-speed broadband services.” - Governor Phil Murphy

Small Business Spotlight:

The Economic Development Committee would like to spotlight a local small business in town. This quarter we would like to spotlight IWheel USA...

My name is Delphine Venitucci and our family moved to the United States from France in 2018, when my husband was relocated for work to Mt. Olive.

My background is in marketing and strategy where I have helped businesses with startups. Since moving from France I have assimilated into the American culture and the business environment where my entrepreneurship, creativity, and hard work have become a part of my DNA. I felt like it was the perfect time and Mt. Olive was the perfect place to create my own business called IWheel USA.

A series of beautiful coincidences pointed me towards the disability world. I discovered an amazing community, full of joy, with rich human relationships, and driven people. I also realized that wheelchairs are often an obstacle to starting a conversation, because people tend to notice the wheelchair before they notice the person sitting in the chair.

I decided to create a brand of smart and fashionable accessories for wheelchairs, hoping to generate greater conversations, and help wheelchair users by styling their chairs like they do with their own beautiful selves.

IWheel is now on a mission to help change perceptions of disabilities by addressing the topic through a creative, fun, and self-expression perspective. The first collections of these wheelchair accessories are available online at www.iwheel.us, and additional products will be added soon! The brand is based in Mt. Olive but proudly serves wheelchair users from around the world.
